inded to the deputy sheriff that he had deceived the judge; that the woman was not his wife and the children not his children. He told a story of having met the woman and her family at Jeffersonville, Indiana, and of their travelling into Ohio living together as man and wife; the woman's husband, according to her story, deserted her and her children about three years ago. Another witness appeared from Henry county in the person of a man who claims to have been a member of this travelling party until recently, and claims that King joined the woman and her family at Dayton, Ohio, about eight months ago; this story is contradictory to King's story and the Court is in a quandary as to what story to believe or whether to believe any of them. Judge Barber has taken care of the children by committing the necessary to kill one of the horses and the oldest boy, a lad of 16, has yone off with the balance of the travelling outfit. According to the man's story he has laid himself liable to prosecution under the White Slave Act, but his story is contradicted. At all events the exnosure and mistreatment of four little children has heen storned by the Juvenile Court of Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county and James Kiner will have some time for meditation in the Fulton county of the man's story he has laid himself liable to Willer C.
